Sustainable procurement is increasing as a key driver for business. Embedding sustainable procurement into policy and practice is a key aspiration for the UK Government at national, regional and local level. Membership of Envirolink Northwest's Buy Recycled Code enables organisations to respond to the sustainable procurement agenda through advocacy, technical support and advice, helping them to adopt a green supply chain.

This free event is dedicated to promoting Envirolink Northwest's Buy Recycled Code. Membership is available to all organisations with a presence in the North West of England.

The aim of Envirolink Northwest's Buy Recycled Code includes providing advice on good practice to organisations enabling them to integrate sustainable procurement into everyday purchasing decisions - thus 'greening' the supply chain by sourcing materials and products with recycled content.

Envirolink Northwest's Buy Recycled Code is reaching an increasingly proactive audience within the North West business community, working with the construction, energy, waste, service and public sectors.

This is an exciting opportunity to be informed of the benefits of joining the Buy Recycled Code and the support available to help to 'green' your organisation's procurement supply chain. Presentations will be given by a range of speakers, including existing Buy Recycled Code members from the public and private sector discussing the level of support received and the economic, social and environmental benefits of implementing sustainable procurement practice.

This opportunity would appeal to all individuals with the responsibility for sustainability and/or procurement, including local authorities, business leaders, procurement managers, environmental managers, quality managers, senior managers and other senior staff.
